Academy Unveils 2010 Class of Fellows

WASHINGTON – The American Academy of Nursing announced that 116 nurse leaders have been selected to be inducted as Fellows during the Academy's 37th Annual Meeting and Conference on November 13, 2010 in Washington. This is the largest class of inductees since 2002.

“Selection for membership in the Academy is one of the most prestigious honors in the field of nursing,” said Academy President Catherine L. Gilliss, DNSc, RN, FAAN. “Academy Fellows are truly experts. The Academy Fellowship represents the nation's top nurse researchers, policymakers, scholars, executives, and practitioners.”

Selection criteria include evidence of significant contributions to nursing and health care. Each nominee must be sponsored by two current Academy Fellows. The new Fellows are selected by a panel comprised of elected and appointed Fellows, and selection is based, in part, on the extent to which nominees' nursing careers influence health policies and health care delivery for the benefit of all Americans. New Fellows will be eligible to use the credentials FAAN (Fellow of the American Academy of Nursing) after their November induction.

The Academy is made up of more than 1,600 nursing leaders in education, management, practice, policy, and research. Leadership positions held by Academy Fellows include university presidents, chancellors, and deans; state and federal political appointees; hospital chief executives and vice presidents for nursing; researchers and entrepreneurs; and practicing nurses.

“I congratulate all of these new Fellows,” said Gilliss, “and look forward to honoring their accomplishments in November 2010 in Washington, DC.”
